

SHERMAN

Jonathan

1987 - 2015

Jonathan Sherman was an unhappy individual. Since the accidental—but long overdue—release of his soul in 1987, he was a persecuted member of society. He discovered his ability to write while in elementary school and won numerous awards for his newswriting during high school. Jonathan graduated from Metropolitan State University with a BA in Professional Writing and minors in Research and Information Studies and English. While he detested dogs, Jonathan embraced birds, especially crows. He was the founder of Misanthropes Unanimous and was the sole leader and member of the Feminist Misogynist movement. Jonathan was also the author of several books, including “The Great Minnesota Manifesto,” in which he proposed the annexation of Duluth to the waters of Lake Superior and the extermination of its remaining residents. Though it may be argued upon this announcement, Jonathan was a baptized and confirmed member of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, and his account was in good standing. Jonathan is survived by the Lord, Brother Brian (Mckinney), Friend Mr. Finch (Zebra), Grandmother Charlyn (Petermann), and Auntie Rachel (Cline), and is survived thrice by Best Friend and Mother Maggie (Petermann). Although Jonathan was able to successfully pay his cremation society dues in full, he had yet to revise the latest draft of his epitaph, which reads as follows:

I don't like anybody.

Anybody doesn't like me.

All I need is my drink and my Lord,
And a rope in the cottonwood tree.

Jonathan was murdered on the east side of St. Paul while heavily antagonizing his assailants. His unfulfilled dreams included becoming a spokesman for Seagram's Gin and Kool Cigarettes. His last word was, “Bye.” Services won't be held.
